Chapter 1 by Story Wars

The creature stepped gingerly forth, almost forgetting for a second the ruins from which she exited. What little of the sky wasn't illuminated by the blaze behind her was scarred with stars. She searched into the distance for a while before concluding that the one she was looking for must have either passed her already or was somewhere behind her. Her eyes travelled back to her ship. Ruined. There would be no more searching for that star tonight.

And on that note, she started to cry.

Chapter 2 by SaintSayaka

Why did she have to go looking for Grandfather's constellation? Everyone at home was right. This wasn't woman's work, and it never would be. And how was she going to explain that she not only stole the family ship, but promptly destroyed it? The constellation was long gone, and she had nothing to show for it.

What has she even crashed on? She settled onto the strange planet's purple grass and relaxed, unwilling to continue feeling sorry for herself. She hadn't seen anything. In back of her, the ship continued to burn. It would only be a matter of time until it reached the grass, and illuminated that too.
